Summary: Sometimes, the ones we look up to the most turn out to be our enemies. What if Megatron wasn't the evil one? What if he was trying to stop Optimus from doing something evil? What if Optimus was trying to destroy humanity instead of protect them? Perhaps, he was faking it all along. Perhaps he is the true threat. The others don't know it, but Galvatron does.

A leader's insanity

A/N: This is my first Transformers fanfiction and it's been a really long time since I've watched any of the movies (I haven't seen the full movie of AoE). Please don't hate me. Also, the characters are animals so...yeah. And uh, some of the characters might be out of character so yeah.

Quick guide: Galvatron- wolf

Optimus- wolf

Autobots- wild/large cats

Decepticons- dogs

Dinobots- dinosaurs (duh)

Humans- domestic animals

Creators/Quintessons- dragons

>Galvatron flicked his tail and leaped onto a boulder. It had been two years since the incident with Lockdown and the decepticon leader still hadn't thought of a plan to get his revenge on Optimus. He had thought of ambushing him but that would just be boring. Maybe if he held him captive and tortured him... Yes, that's a great idea! The silver wolf smiled evilly and looked at the setting sun. That fool. He will pay for what he did to me, the deception leader thought. He twitched his ears at the sound of an explosion and turned his head to the source. Curiously, Galvatron walked to the where he had heard the explosion and gave a low growl when he saw his brother staggering towards him. "Prime!" Galvatron snarled. The autobot leader didn't say anything. He only glared at him and walked away. Galvatron leaped in front of him and snarled, "Where are you off to in such a hurry? Did you lose your dignity when facing your creators?" The blue wolf glared at him and growled, "Now is not the time for this." He walked around his brother and flicked an ear. Galvatron sensed that something was wrong with his little brother and he wanted to know what it was. "You're not you today," he muttered. Optimus faced him with a look of hatred as he said, "Really? I didn't notice!" Galvatron backed away from him and frowned.

"Since when were you so snappy?" he asked.

"I don't know. Maybe I was always like this. Maybe I was just hiding my true feelings from you until now," Optimus said taking a step forward. "Why? Why is it that every time I try...you always come back?"

Galvatron shrugged. "I suppose our allies prefer me more than you," he said with a smirk.

"Don't start with that again! I told you to forget about that a long time ago," his brother replied.

"How can I forget that fateful day. The day when you killed her...you killed your own sister-"

"She was a traitor!"

Galvatron shook his head and sighed. "No, she wasn't. Everyone loved her. Everyone but you," he said bitterly. "You hated her. You hated her because you couldn't admit that she was better than you-"

"Shut up!" Optimus snarled as he scratched Galvatron's face. The white wolf yelped in pain and staggered back.

"You've...gotten stronger than before," he said.

"Stronger than her," Optimus growled bitterly.

"It doesn't have to be like this. You will never be her and you will never be stronger than her! Now that I realize it, you were only faking it. You would _never_ become allies with humans. You would've killed them if it weren't for me and the all spark. Hmm, so if I were to die and never come back..." he looked at the leader of the autobots and his hackles rose. "You would kill everyone wouldn't you? You would destroy this world until you achieved your goal. But you know what? You won't. You won't do it because I won't let you hurt innocent people," Galvatron growled as he glared at him.

"You are correct. It looks like the roles have changed. I can kill you right now if I wanted to...but you know why I'm not going to kill you?" Optimus asked as he leaned forward until he was inches away from his brother's snout.

"Why?"

"That agreement we made back in cyberton. Do you remember? With Ultra Magnus? Yes, of course you do. Well, I killed him."

"No..."

"Yes, and you must fulfill your half of the deal." Galvatron, for the first time, felt afraid. He was afraid that his younger brother might turn into a power hungry villian who would stop at nothing to get what he wanted. _Just like me... _Galvatron looked at his brother sadly.

"Please, you don't know what you're doing. You're going to kill yourself if you do this. You'll rrgret it someday," he said.

"No I won't! I'll be stronger than them. They will see that I am Alpha and no one will ever underestimate me again," Optimus said angrily as he lashed his tail. Galvatron looked at him pitifully and said nothing as he watched his brother walk away into the sunset.
